The whole matter has now been presented by Attorney-General Samuei W. Williams, of Virginia, and is clearly and fully before the court. It is entirely possible that on next Menday, when the court hands down its decisions, it may direct that unless the State of West Virginia shall inmediately comply with the findings of the court, drastic action will be taken immediately. Those who are familiar with the proceedings and with the many efforts which Virginia has made to have West Virginia pay up her part of the debt, believe that the court will not spare words in saying what it thinks of the action of West Virginia and its State of the court. It is the hope of Attorney-General Williams that the court will take such action as will force West Virginia to settle or show her to be a dishonest State in the eye of the people.
